

Build our community one student at a time.

CBT's inclusive structure unites primary and secondary students (3rd - 10th grade), college students, school and community leaders and successful young professionals in a program of academic tutoring, character development and community improvement programs.

CBT was incorporated in Illinois in 2004. The Internal Revenue Service gave CBT tax exempt status as a 501 c3 organization on August 21, 2006.

CBT works because we work with others.

We involve the parents of our learners, respect their authority and learn from their insights.

We respond to the schools we work with, adhere to their guidelines and seek out advice from the resident teachers and administrators.

We acknowledge the crucial support of our sponsors and community leaders and strive to improve CBT from the feedback they give us.

Join Us.

You were born to lead.

CBT's leadership is an active, growing, hands-on cohort. Our expanding leadership is comprised of young professionals working in Finance, Law, Medicine, Advertising, Journalism and Education. They volunteer their time and effort; they teach and lead by their example.

If you want to put your skills into practice, contact our board at board@cbtutors.org.

Community Building Tutors
P.O. Box 13290
Chicago, IL 60613

www.cbtutors.org
email info@cbtutors.com

CBT has three sites.

Chase Park
4701 North Ashland Avenue

ACME Arts Building
1741 North Western Avenue

Merit School of Music
38 South Peoria Avenue

You're a hotshot,
a rising star, a ringer,
an up-and-comer,
a person on the move,
one to be reckoned with, you're corner-office material on the way to the top ...

Obviously,
it's time you meet
with some really important people.

Introduce yourself to the tutors and learners of CBT

Community Building Tutors unites young professionals, college and high-school students with primary-grade students through tutoring and community service projects.

A hometown program — your town, your program. Tutoring takes place at community centers in the Chicagoland area. Here the volunteer high-school and college tutors meet one-on-one with young learners from local primary and middle-schools. CBT provides the structure within which positive interaction occurs among different age groups.

CBT leaders recruit enthusiastic and able high-school and college-level volunteers through on-site visits. Prospective tutors complete a thorough application, go through a robust interview and take an orientation course before their first tutoring session.

You choose how you want to be involved.

Oversee weekly tutoring sessions for twelve-week periods.

CBT has three sites in Chicago where you can volunteer to implement a tutoring program. Our programs cover a variety of academic subjects and involve value-formation discussions. Program size varies but usually has eight to ten young learners and five to seven high-school tutors.

Guide a community project supported by high-school students.

Coordinate a hands-on community improvement project that directly benefits the local community. For example, work with two to three high-school tutors to plan a Halloween party for local families, or perhaps coordinate a holiday toy drive. Project ideas come from the high-school tutors.

Volunteer to help out on the day of a CBT event.

Hands-on community service is part of CBT's ethos. For example, assist tutors and other CBT volunteers on the day of a park beautification. Spend time working with high-school and college-level tutors exchanging perspectives and building a stronger community.

